Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 11 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and, mainly morning, showers.

Today:
A bright day with occasional showers, these largely dying out in the early afternoon with more in the way of sunshine developing. Cooler than Thursday with occasionally fresh westerly winds. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
A mainly dry evening and night with some late sunny then clear spells, although cloud increasing in the west later. A much fresher night than of late. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Saturday:
A bright start in the east but generally a rather cloudy day with perhaps a few spots of rain along the north coast. Brighter in west later in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Some warm sunshine Sunday but cloudier later with showers. Cooler again Monday with a few showers and sunny spells. Dry, bright start Tuesday but cloudier in afternoon with rain later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.